Runners break records at Philadelphia Marathon

A good time was had by all. The third-place winner in the men's division had never run in a marathon before Sunday.

Experienced Ethiopian runner Abebe Mekuriya finished Sunday's Philadelphia Marathon first with a time of 2:17:35. This was his first marathon in the United States — and the first time he's been to this country.

And just about a minute behind him was Tesfaye Dube, also an Ethiopian, who came in second with a time of 2:18:15.

Nick Hilton wasn't far behind that. He clocked in at 2:19:36 to cross the line of his first marathon.

Russian Irina Alexandrova won the women's division with a time of 2:39:06. She was followed by Tezeta Dengersa of Washington, D.C., who finished with a time of 2:40:13, and Meseret Basa, of New York City, who finished in third place at 2:40:51.

"The course was great; the crowds and today's conditions were very good," Alexandrova said. "I very much wanted to win today and am very happy with my win."

Records were set for the half marathon. Rkia El Moukim finished the women's division with a time of 1:10:53, breaking a record set last year. She also set a record at Saturday's 8K.

Elijah Karanja once again took the top men's spot in the half. He finished at 1:02:59.

Found: Couple gets their letters

They finally found their letters.

Shauna and Kyle Goodman's quest to relocate their box of sweetheart letters and mementos, which Metro covered last week, got its happy ending over the weekend.

Shauna said the United States Postal Service found the box, which had been lost in transit.

"I had started to lose hope that they were lost for good this time," said Shauna. "Still haven't made it through all of them, but it's been so great for us to go through the ones we have so far."

The box of mementos and letters survived a fire in Shauna's California family home, but after it was put into storage, the box couldn't be found for 13 years.

Shauna's mother stumbled upon the box during a recent move and shipped them from California to the Goodmans' Old City home recently. However, the box never reached its destination — until this past weekend.

"Can't tell you how much this means to us!" Shauna said. TOMMY ROWAN

Nightclub shooting

Brawl turns to gunfire on South Street

A 21-year-old man was shot outside of Mixed Plate Club after a fight started inside and spilled out onto the street, according to officials. Police already had been on the site when the gunfire started.

The man was shot multiple times around 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning. As of press time, he was still listed as in extremely critical condition.

Reports say an officer outside the club described the scene as "a mad house."

Police have the shooter in custody along with a weapon, reports say. Charges are pending. METRO

City Council president honored

Philadelphia City Council President Darrell L. Clarke was named Public Servant of the Year by the Greater Philadelphia Association of Realtors.

The last time a person was bestowed with the honor was in 2007. "[Clarke] cares about residents, businesses, job creation and the quality of neighborhoods across the city," GPAR President Allan Domb said.

Clarke said he was "deeply humbled and grateful" for the recognition.

"While I celebrate the progress and growth our city has seen," he added, "I never forget for one second the miles we have to go." METRO

Lethal injection

Man sentenced to death for 2008 murder

Omar Cash, 31, was sentenced to death for the murder of Muliek Brown, said officials with the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office.

Officials said Cash shot Brown in the back of his head outside a carwash in Frankford on April 21, 2008.

It took a jury of 12 less than two hours to reach a unanimous decision for Cash to be executed by lethal injection.

"This was a horrible and senseless crime," said District Attorney Seth Williams in a news release. "Mr. Brown was a hardworking father whose death is a loss for the entire city of Philadelphia."

GOV'S PLAN IS BETTER THAN YOU THINK

It's been a rough, confusing month for Pennsylvania's uninsured. The federal health exchange's website continues to be crippled by errors and Gov. Tom Corbett has decided not to allow the state to participate in the Medicaid expansion, a part of the Affordable Care Act.

Instead, Corbett has proposed a plan called Healthy Pennsylvania to the federal government.

Corbett laid out the problems with the implementation of the Affordable Care Act in a recently penned letter to President Barack Obama. Corbett called out the president on the problems plaguing his new health care initiative.

Quoted

"These changes will only upset some Democrats, the type who are against any and all restrictions on entitlements ..."

"We need solutions and options in Pennsylvania and for Pennsylvanians, not broken promises," he said.

Corbett urged the president to consider his "private option" plan.

"Why should a government-run portal be the required avenue?" Corbett asked. "As policymakers, our goal should be to provide more options, not fewer. Please consider using private resources and entities that have been enrolling people in health coverage for decades."

What the private option would do is use federal funding to help low-income state residents purchase private health insurance.

Arkansas is the first and only state where the private option was approved and is already having huge success, while the federal signup process continues to flounder. The Arkansas Times reports that 49,787 people have signed up through the private option in the small state.

Corbett's plan is also a major reform to Medicaid, which he doesn't trust to be sustainable in the long run. There is a lot of common sense backing in that line of thinking. The federal government in recent months has proven itself to be an inconsistent and incompetent partner for states, from the government shutdown to the way the Affordable Care Act was implemented.

A PDF of the plan on the Department of Public Welfare's website says the main objectives of Medicaid reform are "applying work search requirements and a link to job training opportunities" with an emphasis on "personal responsibility" — meaning able-bodied Medicaid recipients will be expected to look for jobs.

These changes will only upset some Democrats, the type who are against any and all restrictions on entitlements, but will be popular with taxpayers who understand that spending is a problem.

Major obstacles lay ahead for Corbett: The federal government still has to approve his health initiative, and he needs to convince Pennsylvanians that it's better than the alternative of expanded Medicaid.

So far, he has not successfully achieved either of those goals, but is attempting to make some progress on the latter with a media blitz touting his plan.

Do You Suffer from Leg Pain or Varicose Veins?

Dr. Richard Gray can help you if you have any of these conditions

Non-Surgical

Varicose Veins - More than a Cosmetic Problem...

If you have varicose veins, you already know they are unsightly and uncomfortable. Do you also know they can be hazardous to your health? Varicose veins are abnormally dilated veins that may protrude on the skin surface and appear as twisted and rope-like. They are the result of the backward flow of blood and often associated with symptoms such as pain, achiness, fatigue, heaviness, swelling, burning and itching. They may also be indicative of more serious health issues.

Venous Reflux Disease – A More Serious Condition…

Varicose veins may be symptoms of venous reflux disease, a serious medical condition. Healthy leg veins contain valves that open and close to assist the return of blood back to the heart. Venous reflux disease develops when these valves become damaged or diseased. As a result, vein valves will not close properly, causing varicose veins and other symptoms. This disease is progressive and can worsen over time.

It Could Happen to You - Contributing Factors…

There are many underlying causes that may contribute to the presence of venous reflux disease, which has been attributed to heredity, obesity, pregnancy and professions that require long hours standing. Although some people are more susceptible than others by virtue of their jobs and/or medical history, the fact is that venous reflux disease and varicose veins can happen to anyone.

Real Relief - Minimally Invasive, Maximum Results…

Although many people find relief by elevating their legs or wearing prescription strength compression stockings, these are temporary measures. There are more permanent treatment options that offer real relief and are minimally invasive including:

- Radiofrequency (RF) Ablation - An innovative technique and desirable alternative to surgical stripping, where the doctor inserts a very small tube (catheter) which sends out radiofrequency energy that shrinks and seals the vein wall. Healthy veins around the closed vein restore the normal flow of blood.
- Laser Ablation - Vein Ablation technique sometimes performed instead of RF.
- Microphlebectomy - A procedure where varicose veins are removed through small incisions or needle holes that don't require stitches.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

The Advantages…

The results of our minimally invasive vein treatments can be life changing. Patients experience little to no pain, and are back to their normal routines quickly. Most non-cosmetic procedures are covered by health insurance.

Presents are pouring in for Tony's Metro Magic

Giving spirit. Our generous readers are writing in about their donations to our toy drive for kids in need.

Gifts have started to arrive at the Metro offices in New York, Philadelphia and Boston for Tony's Metro Magic, and our generous readers are writing in about their donations.

Metro's annual holiday toy drive for children in need is done in conjunction with Toys for Tots and the U.S. Marines.

It was formerly overseen by our beloved editor-in-chief, Tony Metcalf, who passed away in July from cancer at age 50. Metro Magic was an initiative that he held dear to his heart, and we've renamed the event in his honor.

Quoted

"Good luck with the rest of the wish list. It is a wonderful gesture that you are doing."
Joann Farda

Here are just a few notes from some of our generous readers who have donated gifts to needy children this year.

"I just wanted to thank you for running this drive and letting us know in the paper. I donated a Let's Cuddle Elmo ... because what kid wouldn't love that?!" TOM AREVALO

"I would like to donate these toys on behalf of my sons Christopher and Brandon Minott. I wanted them to know we can help others and make other children happy. Thank you. I am so grateful I could help other children." BERNICE HUDLEY

"I wanted to give a shoutout to Metro and the Marines for doing a wonderful thing at the holidays. Keep up the great work. I hope the children have a merry Christmas." NAME WITHHELD

"It was so easy to do and I hope more people will help out. A few clicks and it's done and coming to Metro's office. I feel good knowing someone's going to write in a One Direction diary and some little one is going to be playing with a new toy car soon. Thank you for making this donation such an easy process. Best of luck with the toy drive." LIZ

What to give

Metro is collecting new, unwrapped gifts, not clothes.

- Things like action figures, dolls, board games and sports toys, like a football, are always good.
- And don't forget about older children, ages 11 and up. Older children would love to receive an MP3 player, a makeup kit or a poster from their favorite movie this year.
- Spending $10 or $20 on a toy or two for a needy child can make a big difference.

How to take part

Tony's Metro Magic

1 Look for the Tony's Metro Magic logo on our website, Metro.us.

2 One click on the logo will take you to a "Wish List" we have set up via a secure link on ToysRUs.com.

3 Once there, you can see all the toys we've already requested for kids, and more are being added daily. Simply select the toys you want and purchase them. That's it! Selecting only the toys on our Wish List ensures that all the gifts will be shipped to our offices.

Let us know!

If you donate, email us at charity@metro.us letting us know what you gave and we'll shout out a "thank you" in the paper.

Pelosi denies Democrats retreating from Obamacare

Pressure. Obama said insurers could extend existing policies for a year even if they don't comply with law.

The top Democrat in the House of Representatives said on Sunday that her party would not abandon President Barack Obama's landmark health care reform law, despite unrelenting Republican opposition and emerging signs of market turmoil for consumers and health insurers.

Two days after 39 House Democrats joined Republicans on a bill aimed at undermining the law known as Obamacare, House Democratic leader Nancy Pelosi denied that Democrats have lost confidence in Obama's ability to overcome a botched rollout of his signature domestic policy achievement.

"There's a lot of whoop-de-do and ado about what's happening," Pelosi told the "Meet the Press" program.

"It doesn't mean: Oh, it's a political issue, so we're going to run away from it. No. It's too valuable for the American people," she said, claiming similar numbers of Democratic lawmakers have joined Republicans on votes that challenged Obamacare in the past. REUTERS

Malfunction. Drone hits US Navy ship during training event

An aerial target drone malfunctioned and crashed into a United States Navy ship off the coast of southern California on Saturday, leaving two sailors with minor burns, a Navy spokeswoman said.

Two Navy ships were involved in tracking the unmanned drone as part of a training exercise on Saturday afternoon when the drone malfunctioned and collided with the USS Chancellorsville, a guided-missile cruiser, the spokeswoman said on Sunday.

About 300 people were aboard the ship at the time, said Lieutenant Lenaya Rotklein, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Third Fleet.

The ship was returning to the Naval Base San Diego for repairs and an investigation into the mishap. REUTERS

Gaming. Sony is counting on the console to revive its consumer electronics business.

Sony Corp. said on Sunday it had sold 1 million units of its new PlayStation 4 gaming console in the first 24 hours that it was available in the United States and Canada.

Andrew House, the head of Sony Computer Entertainment, the unit of Sony that oversees PlayStation, said in a statement that "sales remain very strong in North America."

"We expect continued enthusiasm as we launch the PlayStation 4 in Europe and Latin America on Nov. 29," House said.

Sony Corp. had previously announced it had received more than 1 million advance orders for the console. Still, the initial sales figures are Sony's first salvo in a battle brewing with Microsoft Corp.'s Xbox One console, which goes on sale Nov. 22.

Robert W. Baird & Co. analyst Colin Sebastian has said he expects 2.5 million to 3 million PlayStation 4 shipments in the fourth quarter throughout North America. REUTERS

DOUGLAS COUPLAND

Douglas Coupland is a Canadian writer, artist and designer. His first novel was 1991's "Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture." His novella, "Temp," of which this is the 11th installment, will be running online and in the pages of your daily Metro each weekday through Nov. 29.

Day 11: Temp enters a universe of pain

It was a Quentin Tarantino standoff where everyone holds up a gun at everyone else, except there weren't guns, just words and emotions. The Danimal looked at Kyle and then at Sarah and hissed. "You cradle robber."

Danimal walked up closer and that's when Kyle slugged him in the gut — well, more like where your gut touches your rib cage. It sounded like a kettledrum and Danimal fell to the floor shouting astonishingly unprintable things at Kyle and Sarah, who up and left.

"What is wrong with that kid!" shouted Dan, "Oh my God, the pain!"

"Thanks for accusing me of spying," I said.

He coughed. "Shannon, take me to emergency. I think I'm going to die."

We went to his BMW where he curled into a ball in the passenger seat while I drove.

I said, "I really shouldn't be doing this. You're mean."

"Just take me to Crown Permanente."

"Oh. Going to the rich peoples' hospital are we?"

"Please drive."

We arrived and Danimal hobbled out of the seat and into Emerge, an oasis of calm with tastefully matched fabrics and gentle lighting. There was a copy of Modern Symphony magazine on the walnut-inlaid coffee table. We went to the desk where a supermodel was moonlighting as a nurse on duty.

Dan groaned, "I need an X-ray. Quick."

"Of course, sir. I'll need to take an imprint of a credit card. We accept all major cards."

Danimal looked in his pockets. "Oh jeez, it's in the pocket of the jacket that went out for dry cleaning today. Just let me in. I'll bring it tomorrow. I'm totally insured."

I could see that our supermodel had been through this many a time. "I'm sorry, sir, but without an imprint of a valid card with the correct credit limit, I'm afraid there's nothing further we can do."

"I —" He was speechless.

"Welcome to my world," I said. "Get back in the car. I'll take you to St. Eustace."

"That's in the worst part of town."

"What's your point?"

So we drove off to St. Eustace. "It's just a slug in the gut, Dan. How bad can it be?"

"He broke something. Or damaged my heart. I can tell. Oh my God, the pain!"

We pulled up to St. Eustace, which resembled the battle-ravaged Vietnamese village remains in part three of "Full Metal Jacket." A conga line of sick and wounded people stretched out the front door and into the street. One quick wardrobe change and you'd have "Les Misérables."

"I can't go in there," Danimal said.

"It's either that or nothing. Want me to take you home?"

"No!"

"OK, then join the line."

Maddox Jolie-Pitt, the mohawked toddler of our hearts, is now a preteen. The 12-year-old appeared with mom Angelina Jolie and dad Brad Pitt on the red carpet at Saturday's Governors Awards in Los Angeles. In addition to posing on the red carpet, the three were there to see Jolie accept an award for her commitment to global philanthropy.

Talking point

Affleck and Bale know Batkid is best

Ben Affleck is getting ready to suit up as the caped crusader for "Batman vs. Superman," but he's smart enough to know when he's been bested.

After the Make-A-Wish Foundation helped transform San Francisco into Gotham City on Friday for the benefit of 5-year-old cancer patient Miles Scott — who took on the identity Batkid — Affleck took to Twitter to show his support. "Batkid. Best Batman ever," he posted.

Miles Scott (aka Batkid) captures the Riddler with Batman during Miles' superhero adventure on Friday in San Francisco.

And Christian Bale also noted his support. "It's so touching," he said in an interview with Vulture. "Wasn't that fantastic?"

Baldwin uses hate speech, threatens to quit acting

Alec Baldwin is doing major damage control after he was caught on tape calling a photographer a gay slur as he chased him on the streets of New York on Thursday, a controversy that resulted in the suspension of his MSNBC talk show. But as the actor asserts in a Huffington Post editorial, the real problem still hasn't been addressed.

"In Bloomberg's New York, 40 or 50 paparazzi are allowed to block streets, inconvenience homeowners, workers and shoppers, and make life miserable for my neighbors," he writes. "Photographers have tripped and fallen on babies in strollers on my block. ... They provoke me, daily, by getting ... close to me with their cameras as weapons, hoping I will react."

And if the paparazzi don't stop, Baldwin may take his acting ball and go home. "If quitting the television business, the movie business, the theatre, any component of entertainment, is necessary in order to bring safety and peace to my family, then that is an easy decision. This country's obsession with the private lives of famous people is tragic," he writes.

Are we to excuse his hate speech because his wife was almost hit in the head with a microphone? That doesn't compute in my head. Does it in yours?

Moms is the word for Goldberg

"Whoopi Goldberg Presents Moms Mabley" premieres Monday at 9 p.m. on HBO. / HBO

TV. Why Whoopi wanted to bring the story of Moms Mabley to the screen.

Even if you've won every big award in show business, it doesn't guarantee you'll be able to finance a movie on your own.

So, Whoopi Goldberg (who has won an Oscar, a Grammy, a Tony and two Emmys) turned to Kickstarter to fund her new documentary, "Whoopi Goldberg Presents Moms Mabley."

After the initial surprise of her fundraising efforts wore off, Goldberg says donors "lost their minds and just gave and gave and gave."

The doc is a labor of love for the 57-year-old star, who says she had wanted to make a film about Jackie "Moms" Mabley for a long time. She says she used to impersonate Mabley — known for her commentary on race and other taboo topics — early in her own career. But years later, when Goldberg wanted to reprise the role onstage, she realized her audience didn't know the trailblazing comedian.

Mabley died in 1975. / GETTY IMAGES, COURTESY OF HBO

"Folks of a certain age remember her but don't know a lot about her," Goldberg says. "But [younger] folks don't know about Moms. ... One of the things that you discover when you're looking for black performers is there's just not a lot of information out there. ... There wasn't anyone documenting any of it. ... So that's what I think the next thing I want to do is, so that the next person who's maybe looking for someone like Peg Leg Bates can go to one of those documentaries that I'm hoping we get to do and say, 'Oh, here's some information I can use.'"

Moms' day

Famous friends

Comedians like Kathy Griffin, Eddie Murphy and Joan Rivers all appear on camera, singing their praises of Mabley. Goldberg says that industry pals of hers were at first a bit hesitant to speak on the comedian, but that once they opened up "you couldn't stop them from talking."

"One of my favorites is Sidney Poitier," says Goldberg. "We see Sidney talk about coming from the island, coming to Harlem and not really understanding what Moms was talking about when he saw her, but he felt like he was comfortable with her. ... He recognized her in his soul as being like the woman he knew from the island he had come from. You would never think of things like that or how people see you. She was very influential to a lot of people, and it knocked me out to discover it."

'The Birds' are taking flight

Anniversary. Forget the cats; International House is honoring Hitchcock's avian masterpiece.

As the ads for Alfred Hitchcock's avian apocalypse trumpeted 50 years ago, "'The Birds' is coming." This weekend, a four-day series of films with our feathered friends as its subject is coming to International House, with a screening of Hitchcock's "The Birds" on Friday to celebrate its half-century anniversary.

Curator Jesse Pires was inspired, at least in part, by the Walker Art Center's Internet Cat Video Film Festival, which attracted hordes of feline enthusiasts by elevating everyone's favorite cute time-waster to an (admittedly ironic) art form. As Pires explains, "I thought, if they can do cats, why can't we do birds?"

I-House's series, however, is considerably less tongue-in-cheek, with three feature-length films and a number of shorts spread over the program.

In addition to the Hitchcock classic, the series features Ken Loach's moving "Kes," the story of a working-class Yorkshire boy who escapes from his bleak existence by raising and training a baby kestrel; and Michael Gitlin's 2004 essay film "The Birdpeople," an experimental documentary about people whose lives intersect with birds, from Central Park bird-watchers to a group in Louisiana searching the bayou for a bird on the verge of extinction.

Thursday night offers a program of short films curated by filmmaker Rebecca Meyers, formerly the director of film programs for ArtsEmerson at Emerson College, who now programs Bucknell University's screenings at the historic Campus Theatre in downtown Lewisburg. Her eight-film program spans nearly a century of work, from an early Thomas Edison production to digital shorts from the last decade. Each of the features is also accompanied by shorts from filmmakers like Peter Greenaway and Jerome Hill.

"Birds are incredibly mysterious," Pires says, "and there's a certain poetry to their existence. The act of flight in and of itself has a fascinating and wonderful quality that lends itself to contemplation and speculation. That to me is the unifying cinematic quality of having birds as a theme.

'The Best Man' comes in second

This weekend, Thor again triumphed over his foes (namely other movies). / DISNEY, MARVEL

Superhero sequel "Thor: The Dark World" hammered out another victory in its second weekend at U.S. and Canadian box offices, overcoming a strong performance from Christmas-themed romantic comedy "The Best Man Holiday."

"Thor," from Walt Disney Co.'s Marvel Studios, hauled in $38.4 million in ticket sales from Friday through Sunday, according to studio estimates. "Best Man Holiday" earned $30.6 million to take the No. 2 spot. Senior citizen buddy comedy "Last Vegas" finished third with $8.9 million.

Elsewhere, "Catching Fire," the highly anticipated "Hunger Games" sequel starring Jennifer Lawrence, opened big in Brazil with $6.3 million. The movie is to open in the United States, Canada and dozens of other countries on Friday.

"Best Man Holiday," a sequel to 1999 film "The Best Man," exceeded the forecasts of box office analysts, who had predicted a debut at around $24 million.

"Last Vegas" features Robert De Niro, Morgan Freeman, Michael Douglas and Kevin Kline as four friends who gather for a bachelor party. The film has reached $47 million in its three weekend run.

Rounding out the charts, animated movie "Free Birds" took the number four spot with $8.3 million while comedy "Jackass Presents: Bad Grandpa" was fifth pulling in $7.7 million. REUTERS

'TOKYO STORY' IS ONLY THE THIRD GREATEST FILM OF ALL TIME

Drink up

'The World's End'

Sadly, American ticket buyers did not mistake the finale of Edgar Wright, Simon Pegg and Nick Frost's so-called "Cornetto trilogy" for Apatow-fest "This Is the End," despite similar names and premises. Too bad, as this — with a pub crawl interrupted by the apocalypse — is even more inspired. And like "Shaun of the Dead" and "Hot Fuzz" before it, it's bound to become a permanent fixture inside Blu-ray/DVD players.

'Tokyo Story'

The Criterion Collection

Last year, "Vertigo" famously usurped "Citizen Kane"'s place atop Sight & Sound magazine's long-running "greatest films of all time" poll. Less reported was that "Tokyo Story" — Japanese filmmaker Yasujiro Ozu's serenely devastating portrait of family dysfunction — took the bronze, as it did when it entered the poll back in 1992. (It "only" scored fifth in 2002.) Third place of all time is nothing to sneeze at, and though there are better Ozu films — "Late Spring" and "The Munekata Sisters" come to mind — few are as direct and "accessible" to mainstream audiences.

Indeed, "Tokyo Story," from 1953, preys on a primal worry few films dare touch: what to do with parents once they get up in age. Ozu regular Chishu Ryu and Chieko Higashiyama play 60-something retirees who head for bustling Tokyo, where three of their five children live. But they're too busy for their folks (or, in some cases, indifferent). Instead, the parents — eternally smiling and unfailingly polite — spend most of their time with lonely Noriko (another of the director's staples, Setsuko Hara), the widow of their second son.

Because Ozu's style is unhurried and contemplative, one can easily assume he's on the side of the aging, who are ignored by their callous spawn. (This is what happens in an even sadder film, 1937's "Make Way for Tomorrow," which tore apart a penniless geriatric couple right as the creation of social security was being debated.) But it's a deeper and more understanding film than that, one that offers the notion that kids growing apart from their parents, while terrible, is a fact of life. "Isn't life disappointing?" the youngest daughter — the only one still living with the folks — remarks, perhaps not fully realizing that she too will one day have her own life that will drive her to permanent distraction.

INTROVERTS CAN STILL THRIVE IN AN EXTROVERTED WORLD

I'm a bit introverted and often envy my outgoing friends. I want to connect with people, but I feel overwhelmed at parties. Any advice?

If you're more of an introvert, you don't have to go to every party. / PHOTODISC

Introverts get a raw deal in American society, which tends to reward extroverted behaviors — for example, talking versus listening, gregariousness versus introspection and the pursuit of happiness versus the search for meaning.

But there is nothing wrong with being a quieter person.

Introverts are sometimes (but not always) shy, and they usually seek out more intimate social activities. You're likely to find both introverts and extroverts at a party. But while extroverts may float from one person to another, growing more lively as the night progresses, introverts will usually seek out meaningful conversations with one or two people and head home early, having had their fill.

There's a scientific reason for that. Research on brain activity suggests that introverts take in more information than their extroverted counterparts and need quiet time to digest it. Because they absorb more and process it more deeply, introverts often feel overshadowed by their outgoing peers.

Like you, many of my introverted patients express a sense of inadequacy because they don't feel they are living up to American ideals. They feel pressured to "be happy" by being fun and social when, in actuality, meaningful experiences give them a far greater sense of satisfaction. I often explain to them that America has a strong cultural bias toward extroversion (think football). But this is not true everywhere. Some Asian and northern European countries favor such introverted qualities as silence, humility, privacy and restraint.

Since we're not living in Southeast Asia, here are some things you can do to thrive in an extroverted world.

KIM SCHNEIDERMAN, MSW, LCSW

NOVEL-PERSPECTIVE.COM

Kim Schneiderman's book "Step Out of Your Story: Writing Exercises to Reframe and Transform Your Life," is due to be published in the spring.

Four tips

1 Pay close attention to what kinds of people and situations increase or drain your energy. Choose to engage in activities that increase your energy, and minimize participation in those that deplete it. Don't push yourself to do things you don't enjoy just because you feel culturally pressured to do so.

2 Honor and respect your needs. Find ways to interact with friends and colleagues that work for you. At work, introverts often do better expressing their ideas in emails or one-on-one interactions than large meetings because they don't have to compete for the floor and can take the time they need to think through and express their complex thoughts. Socially, seek out one-on-one conversations or create group situations that encourage meaningful sharing.

3 Honor your unique contribution to a group. An introverted client of mine recently expressed her admiration for a fellow student's outspokenness in class, only to find that the colleague equally appreciated her quiet confidence and thoughtful remarks.

4 Let go of shame and envy. Comparisons only drain self-esteem and precious energy.

Women may have harder concussion recovery

After a concussion, women tend to have worse symptoms than men. That's the case even when athletes were injured playing the same sport, according to a new study of soccer players.

The new results show that women take longer to recover than men, Tracey Covassin said. She led the study at Michigan State University.

"Results from this study may impact sports medicine clinicians on being more cautious when returning female concussed soccer athletes back to participation," said Covassin. REUTERS

Beating the on-campus holiday blues

Holidaze. Because a cold turkey sandwich in an empty dining hall isn't an option.

Being home for the holidays is a nice thought — usually — but to many, it's nothing more than a wish. Not every student can make the trek back home for turkey, instead having to settle for a lonely dorm-room dinner. Many campuses, though, are becoming more involved with students' holiday plans, making an effort to bring the comforts of the season to students' home away from home. Whether it's attending a professor's dinner, creating your own potluck with other campus-bound friends or getting a start on holiday shopping, a cold turkey sandwich is not the only option for students staying at school.

At St. Anselm College in New Hampshire, students are often invited to celebrate Thanksgiving with faculty. "We have a small campus and a close community," explains Joseph Horton, vice president for student affairs. "Any student who can't make it home, we try to connect them with faculty and staff." International students who wouldn't normally celebrate the holiday also get in on the turkey time. "We invite them to sit at our table and join in our tradition," he says.

Horton also mentioned that some students choose to take the opportunity of the long weekend to travel together, visiting New York or Boston. Erica Peryga, dean of students at Post University in Connecticut, said she encourages her students to take these trips. "I recommend to students that they consider traveling with friends during this time of year. If you cannot be home with family, but still have freedom to travel, consider visiting a place you have never been before."

Reaching out to friends and classmates to put together a dinner can help make a holiday without family more fun. / PHOTODISC

There's always the option to volunteer on Thanksgiving, too. Faculty and students do it as a group at Eckerd College in Florida. "On Thanksgiving Day, Eckerd students, faculty and staff — led by adult students from our Program for Experienced Learners — will be preparing and serving Thanksgiving dinner for 300 persons in need," says Jim Annarelli, dean of students. And to keep everyone busy during the rest of the week, Annarelli says, "We are scheduling special shopping shuttles for students, holding board game nights in our main student lounge and distributing free movie passes."

DIY

Make it a Friendsgiving

Don't overlook the significance of a "Friendsgiving" and the chance to begin new traditions. "Students remaining on campus during Thanksgiving break have the unique opportunity to create and celebrate new traditions with their friends," explains Peryga. "'Friendsgiving' has become very popular in recent years among students and young professionals who have to be away from their families during the holiday. The great thing about Friendsgiving is that it can take place before Thanksgiving, on the holiday itself or after."

Law schools cut classes

After a spike in 2008, law school admissions are down. / PHOTODISC

Attorneys. Law school admissions take a nose dive.

According to a recent study published by Kaplan Test Prep, 54 percent of law school admissions officers cut the size of their entering classes for 2013-2014, and 25 percent intend to do it again next year. This report comes in light of a bigger trend: an overall decrease in applications. Per the Law School Admission Council, the organization responsible for writing the LSAT, applications have dropped from 602,300 to 385,400 since 2010.

Reducing class size is a matter of basic economics, says Ann Levine, author of "The Law School Admission Game: Play Like an Expert" and founder of LawSchoolExpert.com, a consulting firm for those in the field. "I think it's inevitable — because when there are fewer applicants, law schools aren't going to dip down to cut their rankings.They have no choice but to cut [class sizes]."

One culprit for sluggish applications is the economy, Levine says. "Five years ago when I talked to applicants, they never talked about this issue," she explains. "Now every single applicant is talking about [it]."

Levine is confident that interest in law will increase similar to the way that people began buying houses after the economic crash. "People are keeping an eye on what's going on with loans and job prospects, so it's that cautious optimism. I think we'll see people come back to law school."

Jeff Thomas, executive director of pre-law programs at Kaplan Test Prep, agrees. "There will always be a need for lawyers, especially in 'hot' areas like elder law, tax law and health care, among others. We encourage pre-law students to figure out what they may do with their J.D. once it's in hand. This makes their paths smoother."

At the beginning of the smooth path, of course, is the LSAT. According to data from the Law School Admission Council, the number of test-takers last month was down 45 percent since 2009. Thomas explains, "In 2008 we saw a spike in LSAT takers that rose in subsequent years as many saw law school as an option for waiting out the recession. This population has now graduated and while the economy is slowly recovering, the supply of recent law school graduates is outpacing the current demand."

Thomas says it's nothing to be too concerned about, though. "The number of law school applicants is cyclical. As the economy improves, we'd expect a natural decline," he says. "Historically, when the economy is doing well, there's a decrease in law school applicants as college graduates can more readily find a job and go directly into the workforce."

Expert advice

Four tips for acing the LSATs

2 Time yourself. "Simply practicing questions would be insufficient. It's a five-section test with 35-minute sections. It's an endurance test. Practice the endurance and the timing to spend on each question," she adds.

3 Never leave a question blank. Thomas explains, "Your scaled score of 120-180 is solely a product of the number of correct answers you give on the test."

4 Take the writing section seriously. Although it's unscored, a copy of it is sent to every law school you apply to. He quips, "Don't blow it off!"

Counseling helps students succeed

Study. Access to information is vital to college aspirations.

Getting the right information about colleges is essential to increasing the number of low-income students in college classes. / PURESTOCK

A study by the National Bureau of Economic Research earlier this year found that low-income students who were high academic achievers were not applying to competitive four-year colleges. The study also revealed that with intensive college counseling, students may be more likely to apply to selective colleges.

"There has been a great deal of research done that shows that one of the main reasons low-income students tend to attend less selective colleges than they are suited to stems from a lack of information," explains Thyra Briggs, vice president of admission and financial aid at Harvey Mudd College. Students are unaware of the support, financial and otherwise, available to them. "College counseling can help students understand that colleges with a high price tag often have greater resources for aid," says Briggs, adding that "access to information is everything."

Specialized schools, like the Texas-based Foundation for the Education of Young Women, make sure this information is accessible. Ann Marano, the director of the College Bound Initiative there, knows the value of knowledge about the application process. "Students may not understand the 'language' of it all — how to start a college search, the application process and that financial assistance [exists]," Marano says. That goes for parents too, she says, adding that the organization focuses on helping parents as well.

Dr. Ann P. Garber, an independent counselor, brings up a similar point. "For several reasons, including immigration trends, there's an unprecedented number of applicants whose parents did not attend college. They grow up without hearing about their parents' college experiences," says Garber. Without that knowledge to back them, intensive college counseling is the surest bet to a college path.

Email you can build a career on

No LOLs. Email is often your first impression, so make sure it shines.

Everyone has received an email lacking a salutation or sign-off and only a bare attempt at capitalization, grammar or sentence structure. If these habits continue when a sender enters the workforce, he or she will find that unprofessional emails can mean a negative impact on career prospects.

Err on the side of formality

Professional emails should include accurate punctuation, capitalization, sentence structure, grammar and spelling. If you aren't sure how to address someone, start with the most formal option, e.g., "Dear Ms. Smith," and wait for the reply to determine how to address further correspondence. For professional communication, emoticons, abbreviations and slang acronyms like "LOL" are too informal. Also, stick to the basics and avoid the use of wallpaper or colorful fonts that are distracting and slow down the receiver's ability to process the message. Stick with a basic serif font, such as Times New Roman, or Arial, a basic sans-serif font.

Reread messages before sending

This allows you to check the tone and content of the message from the reader's perspective and enables you to catch mistyped words that will not be caught by your spell checker. An articulate, concise and accurate email tells others that you are intelligent, professional and detail-oriented.

Pro tip

Insert the receiver's address last

This ensures that you do not accidentally send an incomplete email or forget an attachment. This is particularly important when dealing with a sensitive topic. Better yet, if a topic is sensitive, go and talk directly to the person in order to avoid a misreading of your tone or intent via email.

Organize

Keep your inbox clean. Use electronic folders to archive messages that you may need to refer to in the future. Keep the inbox for current items that you need to deal with. This will help you feel organized and less overwhelmed and stressed.

Deal with it

Don't waste your time by reading an email and then leaving it to sit because you don't feel like answering it, only to have to return to the same email later. Have a one-touch policy for each email: Open it, answer it and then delete or file it.

Kid, you can be a 'STAR'

Mnemonics. This simple interview technique could get you the gig.

Mastering the "STAR" interview technique can be the key to showing what you've done and how you've progressed. / CREATAS RF

The least favorite interview question for any job candidate is probably, "Tell me about a time when you …"

It results in tongue-tied awkward silences and stumbled responses as you grasp for examples. This is one of the toughest interview questions to tackle, especially as a new entry into the job market without much experience.

Pick an instance where the result of something you did was positive and offer some areas to think about when preparing for your interview. Examples include leadership skills, teamwork, decision-making, problem solving, feedback and meeting deadlines.

A popular way to deal with this interview question is the "STAR" technique. You outline a situation (S) or a task (T), describe the action (A) you took to resolve it and tell the interviewer the result (R).

Take the time to work out answers to sample questions prior to the interview in the STAR format. It is often difficult to remember specific examples of accomplishments and achievements in the moment.

One of the toughest things as a recent graduate or a student is that you have a smaller pool of examples to choose from. You can use examples from past internships, classes, activities, team involvements, community service as well as work experience.

Remember, just because you have never had a "real" full-time job does not mean you've never used leadership, problem-solving or decision-making skills. The key then to a successful interview experience is preparation. Think about things you have been proud of over the last few years, and how you handled situations that didn't turn out as planned.

There are many resources for sample interview questions online. Pick a few of these and work through them. Although you may not be able to anticipate a specific question an interviewer may ask, the examples that will make you stand out against other candidates will hopefully be closer to the tip of your tongue. MIRA SARAF

US should give health care to the world

Re: 'The buck stops with Congress' (Metro, Nov. 14) Letter writer Mike Mace would have us believe that "illegals" don't deserve health care coverage. I simply wish to remind him that contagious diseases don't care about the immigration statuses of the people they infect. The only fix for our immigration challenges today is to recognize that we are all world citizens, and that economic, political and social exploitation all depend entirely on a system that chooses not to grant either a legal status or basic human rights like health care coverage to all people as world citizens.

GLENN ALPERIN, VIA EMAIL

Healthy weight isn't the same as good health

I find the idea of penalizing employees who are overweight unfair. Some folks who are overweight are very healthy and some who are thin have multiple health problems. If there are penalties to be levied, then they should be according to the number of health problems one has instead of the number on the scale. People who are overweight are penalized and ridiculed because society still thinks it's OK to do so.

Eagles move to first in NFC East with victory

NFL. Philadelphia also won on their home turf for the first time in a year.

Brandon Boykin seemed puzzled that the ball was floating toward him, aimlessly like a wounded duck. The cornerback waited and waited, then snatched it out of the air, toe-tapping both feet in bounds in the back of the end zone.

Boykin's interception secured the Eagles' first victory, a 24-16 win over the Redskins, at Lincoln Financial Field in 413 days.

"Unbelievable. It was just floating in the air, like a high school pass," said Boykin. "I didn't expect it to be just lobbed like it was. I don't know what happened … but that's the type of thing that you expect to happen when you have a good pass-rush. You expect people to get back there and disrupt it, and that's what we did."

The Eagles didn't make it easy. The team nearly blew a 24-point lead as they allowed Washington to drive to their 18-yard line with 40 seconds left before Boykin's interception. The Redskins were feasting on the Eagles' secondary with crossing routes.

The crowd, those who hadn't left early, was nervous. But the Eagles defense remained stoic, refusing to hit the panic button. Perhaps the Eagles' biggest fourth-quarter highlight was Donnie Jones' 70-yard punt, which pinned the Redskins on their own 4-yard line.

"We were calm, no panic," said Boykin. "We've been in that situation plenty of times. We practice that every week. We practice those situations, a minute left, we're up by a touchdown, we have to stop them. When you go through those situations in practice, it makes it easy in games."

It was quite a contrast from the first three quarters, when the Eagles were shoving the Redskins around. They racked up 20 first downs, 351 yards and three touchdowns. LeSean McCoy, who spiked the football through the uprights on his first touchdown run, reached the 1,000-yard plateau for the season early in the third quarter despite a lingering hamstring injury.

"It just gave out, sharp pain, but I'm good," said McCoy, who finished with 77 yards rushing and two touchdowns. "It wasn't as serious as I thought it was. It just grabbed really tightly. I did some stretching, went in the back and then got back out there."

All of a sudden, the Eagles are sitting pretty atop the NFC East. More importantly, the team gets a bye this week, giving banged-up guys a chance to heal. Chip Kelly will have players come in for film study and light practices Monday and Tuesday.

"I think they need to kind of get themselves recharged, rejuvenated, then come back here," Kelly said. "We'll see what December has for us."

Brent Celek outraced the Redskins' secondary for a 42-yard reception in the first half of Sunday's win. / GETTY IMAGES

By the numbers

LeSean McCoy has 4,875 rushing yards in five NFL seasons. He moved ahead of Duce Staley (4,807) for fourth place on the Eagles' all-time rushing list on Sunday.

What we learned ...

Najee Goode, center, celebrates after taking down Robert Griffin III for his first career sack. / GETTY IMAGES

1 Spy vs. spy
When the inactives were published before the game, and the name Mychal Kendricks appeared, fans in the know were worried. Kendricks had been tasked with playing spy on Robert Griffin III, but with him out it fell to the inexperienced Najee Goode. He stepped up like few Eagles fans probably felt he could. He finished with five tackles and one sack, both career highs. But the numbers were more important on Griffin's side. He had just 44 yards rushing on 10 carries and a game long of 14 yards. Chip Kelly emphasized how much different the Redskins' offense would look with a healthy Griffin, but the read-option attack was still not particularly effective 10 weeks after the two teams' first meeting to start the 2013 season. Goode was a big reason for that.

2 Spread it out
One of the hallmarks of Kelly's spread attack is the ability to get multiple weapons involved on offense. Theoretically, the Eagles should have fit perfectly with Kelly's game plan all season. But we finally got to see some of that sharing of the wealth against Washington. Even in the explosion against Oakland a few weeks ago it was mostly DeSean Jackson and Riley Cooper who posted huge games. There was no star on Sunday, but many people got involved. LeSean McCoy had 77 yards on the ground and 73 yards through the air. But Jackson had 82 yards receiving, Brent Celek had one big 42-yard reception, Cooper had a 23-yard catch and Bryce Brown caught both his targets for 28 yards. In all, five different receivers had catches for more than 20 yards.

3 Boy wonder
The Eagles were supposed to have found their franchise cornerback when they signed Nnamdi Asomugha to a five-year, $60 million contract before the 2011 season. He's no longer in the NFL, let alone with the Eagles, and the team seems to have found an heir apparent in Brandon Boykin. He slipped a bit in the 2012 NFL Draft, but fell right into the Eagles' lap in the fourth round. Though the young corner is still a work in progress but he's routinely coming up with big plays. He ended the game Sunday with an interception of Griffin III in the end zone, even if it was an odd prayer by the Redskins' QB. But he also forced a fumble. His 76-yard interception return was a game-changer against the Packers last week and he now has four picks on the season. MARK OSBORNE

Around the NFL

- Bengals 41, Browns 20
The Bengals exploded for 31 points in the second quarter and wound up drubbing the Browns. Jermaine Gresham and Mohamed Sanu both had receiving touchdowns from Andy Dalton in the big quarter. Tony Dye returned a blocked punt 24 yards for a Bengals score and Vontaze Burfict returned a fumble 13 yards in the Cincy victory. The Bengals are now in firm control of the AFC North at 7-4.

- Bills 37, Jets 14
Buffalo picked off Jets quarterback Geno Smith three times Sunday in a rout of their AFC East rival. Smith was held to just 103 yard passing and completed just 8-of-23 through the air. E.J. Manuel tossed a pair of touchdowns for the Bills, finding T.J. Graham from 34 yards out in the second quarter and Marquise Goodwin from 43 yards out in the third. New York dropped to 5-5 on the season while the Bills moved to 4-7.

- Steelers 37, Lions 27
The Lions looked as though they were about to blow out the Steelers by halftime as they scored a whopping 27 points in the second quarter alone, led by Calvin Johnson's pair of TD grabs. But Ben Roethlisberger shined brightest in the second half as he threw two touchdown passes in the final five minutes to upset the Lions. Detroit fell to 6-4 in the jumbled NFC North race.

- Buccaneers 41, Falcons 28
Tampa Bay won its second straight game after starting the season 0-8 as Bobby Rainey rushed for 163 yards and three touchdowns. Rainey's 43-yard touchdown run early in the second quarter sparked the Tampa Bay victory. Vincent Jackson also had a big day for the Bucs at receiver as he hauled in 165 yards off 10 catches. Matt Ryan was picked off twice by the Buccaneers and Atlanta fell to 2-8 on the season.

- Cardinals 27, Jaguars 14
Carson Palmer had a throwback afternoon, passing for 419 yards without an interception in leading Arizona past Jacksonville. The Cards scored 20 unanswered points after the first quarter and won their third straight game to move to 6-4 on the year. Malcom Floyd dominated the Jacksonville secondary as he caught six balls for 193 yards and a touchdown.

- Raiders 28, Texans 23
Gary Kubiak returned to the sidelines for Houston but the Texans were unable to give their head coach a win as they fell to 2-8. Raiders rookie QB Matt McGloin tossed three touchdown passes and Rashad Jennings, filling in for an injured Darren McFadden, rumbled for 150 yards on the ground. The Raiders are now 4-6 and remain alive in the AFC playoff hunt.

- Bears 23, Ravens 20

kicked off Sunday just after 1 p.m. A winner wasn't decided until just after 6 p.m. thanks to a two-hour delay caused by a torrential downpour in Chicago. Matt Forte's 14-yard touchdown reception with 10:42 left in the fourth quarter gave the Bears a 20-17 lead. Baltimore would force overtime thanks to a 21-yard Justin Tucker field goal with seven seconds left in regulation but Chicago kicker Robbie Gould would win it for the Bears in OT with a 38-yard boot that was true.

- Giants 27, Packers 13
Giants defensive end Jason Pierre-Paul picked off Packers quarterback Scott Tolzien early in the fourth quarter and returned it 24 yards for a touchdown to put New York up, 26-13, over Green Bay. The Giants would hang on, winning their fourth straight game and giving them plenty of momentum in a tight NFC East. Tolzien passed for 339 yards but was picked off three times by the Giants defense. New York also held Green Bay running back Eddie Lacy to just 27 yards on 14 carries.

- Seahawks 41, Vikings 20
Russell Wilson was extremely efficient Sunday, throwing the ball just 18 times but winding up with 230 yards passing. Two of his passes went for touchdowns and he did not throw an interception as Seattle moved to 10-1 in 2013. Percy Harvin had one catch against his former team.

- Saints 23, 49ers 20
San Francisco was up 20-14 early in the fourth quarter but Garrett Hartley kicked three New Orleans field goals in the final eight minutes to give the Saints their eighth win of the season.

Rampage returns to form in Bellator fight

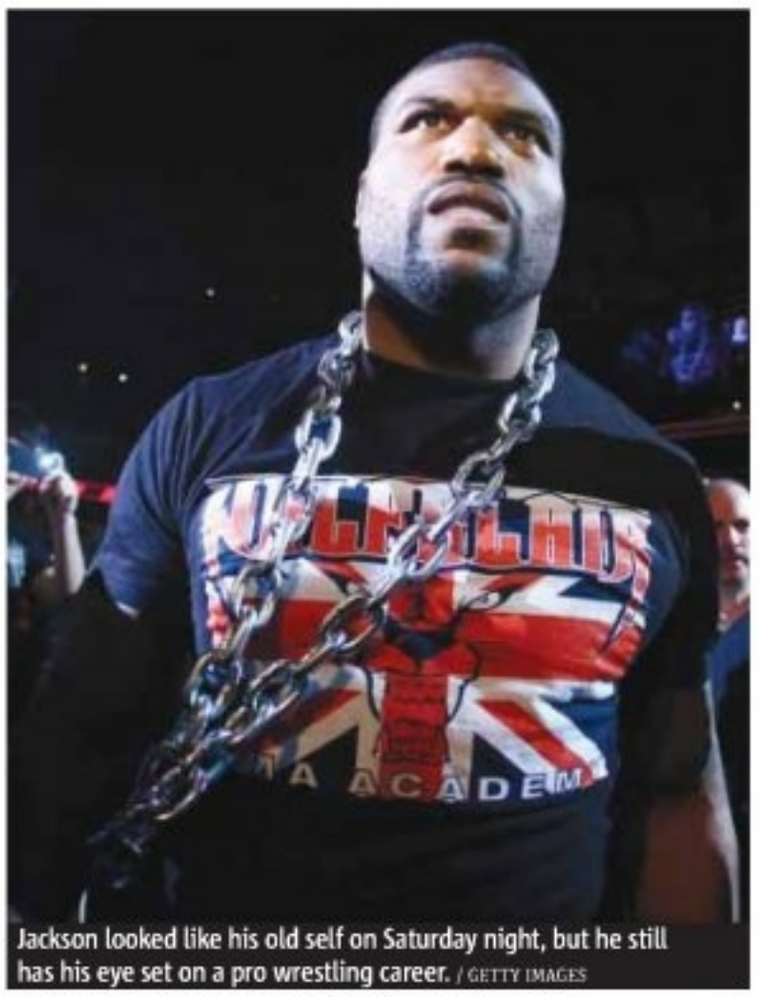
MMA. The former UFC titleholder looked healthy again after multiple knee injuries.

Four minutes and 59 seconds was all it took for Quinton "Rampage" Jackson to announce to the world he was back.

The injury-riddled fighter made his triumphant return this past weekend and knocked out last-minute challenger Joey "The Mexicutioner" Beltran before barely breaking a sweat at Bellator 108 in Atlantic City, N.J.

Jackson (33-11, 1-0 Bellator) jarred Beltran with a devastating left hook in the closing seconds of the opening round, then pounced with his right hand before the referee stopped the fight. It marked Jackson's first stoppage win since UFC 92 in 2008, and his first overall win since 2011.

"Give me this mic! I'm so excited. Give me this mic!" Jackson shouted post-fight. "[Bellator CEO] Bjorn Rebney saved my knees. I proved I still got it. Everybody in my weight class better be shaking in their boots. Y'all have no idea, I'm back."



Jackson looked like his old self on Saturday night, but he still has his eye set on a pro wrestling career. / GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"The last couple years it's been looking like I was sucking, but I was fighting hurt. I got a lot of years left."
Quinton "Rampage" Jackson

Beltran expressed disappointment that referee Dan Miragliotta stopped the bout too soon. He asked Jackson for a rematch during the post-fight press conference.

"It sucks. It is what it is," Beltran said. "I would love Rampage to fight again. I would really love to fight you again, with you-know-who not as the referee. I'm a little upset, but it's all good."

Bellator 108 had been shrouded in controversy after Jackson's original opponent, Tito Ortiz, bailed with a neck injury. Instead of a pay-per-view fight, it was switched to a free Spike TV card, leaving Beltran just a few weeks to train. Jackson expressed no desire in rescheduling with Ortiz.

"I'm over it," he said. "There's a couple reasons why, but I'm not interested in fighting Tito anymore. No interest."

Jackson, who was fighting for the first time since undergoing knee surgery, appeared to have the weight of the world lifted from his shoulders. He injured his left knee while training to face Rashad Evans in 2010, then tore his meniscus while fighting Ryan Bader in 2012.

Jackson will take a few weeks off before hitting the gym again. He wants to get back in the ring soon, but his ultimate goal is to become a professional wrestler.

"That's where I get to be a big kid," Jackson said. "I always wanted to be a pro wrestler, even before I knew what MMA was."
